SPRINT'S VIDEO CONFERENCING PRODUCTS AND SERVICES

Sprint offers one of the most comprehensive room and personal conferencing product portfolios in the industry, including connectivity services, transmission services provided over a 100% digital fiber-optic network, room and personal conferencing equipment from leading manufacturers and ongoing network management support.

Sprint's portfolio of videoconferencing services has been evolving since the 1981 formation of ISACOMM (which Sprint later acquired), a carrier-independent company devoted to providing full service support to its videoconferencing users. Sprint's products and services are designed for ease of use, flexibility and reliability, both for the meeting participant and the telecommunications manager.

Network Options

Switched services - Initially videoconferencing utilized dedicated private networks and satellite based transmissions. Now because of higher quality codecs that allow for better quality video at lower speeds, Sprint's video and personal conferencing services are available using switched data services as the transmission method.

Sprint offers a variety of digital transmission services and term plans. Depending on the size of the company, its geographical dispersion and estimated usage, Sprint can offer a digital transmission service that is designed to meet the individual needs of any organization.

Currently all of Sprint's switched offerings are available at 112/128 kbps (the equivalent of two phone lines) and at higher transmission speeds in increments of 56/64 kbps. To achieve higher speeds using switched services, Sprint supports a device called an inverse multiplexer (IMUX) that dials-up additional phone lines. The more bandwidth available means better video quality during a videoconference.

DCS-Based Services - If a customer is interested in a DCS-based (private) network, Sprint can offer a full-service conferencing solution. The DCS-based (dedicated solution)

Equipment

Sprint provides a full complement of video and personal conferencing equipment allowing for end-to-end videoconferencing services. Instead of dealing with one supplier for network services and another for equipment, customers can rely on Sprint as their single point of contact. Sprint has aligned with the leading equipment manufacturers to offer its customers a comprehensive portfolio of room and personal conferencing systems. Because Sprint is a reseller of equipment and not a manufacturer, Sprint's focus is on consultative and support services. This lets customers obtain objective analysis on which system best suits their needs when making purchasing decisions.

Conference Connections

Sprint offers a variety of connectivity services enabling customers to conference with locations that they normally might not be able to reach.

- Sprint provides the conversion necessary to allow connections to dissimilar codecs.
- Sprint has a number of services that provide access to: private networks, sites on any of Sprint's switched or dedicated private networks, and hundreds of public room facilities including Kinko's (with over 140 rooms). Kinko's and Sprint offer the largest public retail videoconferencing network in the U.S.
- Sprint's connectivity services are not only limited to domestic locations, but also provide access to numerous countries internationally.
- Sprint provides the multipoint connectivity services needed to connect more than two locations in a single videoconference. Multipoint conferences are available for systems running in standards or proprietary modes.

Managed Services

Conferencing services require on-going management including: equipment, network, and end user support; site scheduling, and growth management.

ConferenceCareSM

To ensure service continuity, ConferenceCare offers a complete range of options for equipment, network, and end-user support. The benefits of ConferenceCare include:

- Customers can choose the level of support they need.
- Customers get a single 800# for equipment, network, and end user help.
- Customers can opt for on-site equipment corrective services so they don't have to staff equipment technicians.

- Customers can opt for preventive services to keep their conferencing systems tuned up for greater conference reliability.

In short, Sprint ConferenceCare customers receive the level of support they choose in order to maximize their productivity and ensure the success of their video conferencing application.

Site Management and Scheduling

Sprint will manage room and conference scheduling for the customer. The service, called Meeting Manager PLUS, is available as an on-line option with access from your PC or as a phone-in service to Sprint's Video Conferencing Reservations Center.

Meeting Manager PLUS helps users control costs, administer the conferencing service, and plan for growth by tracking usage information and generating statistical reports for easy analysis. The service is carrier-independent, meaning you don't have to be a Sprint Long Distance customer to use the service. Furthermore, the service is unique in the industry because any time a conference is booked that requires Conference Connections the service automatically reserves the appropriate equipment in Sprint's Video Conferencing Operations Center. This saves the customer from having to book a conference twice and from needing the expertise to understand when Conference Connections are needed.

Additionally, Sprint's billing and reservations systems can generate reports to help customers manage growth. The reports track items such as how busy a particular room is or how often multipoint conferences are conducted. Additionally, Sprint's hierarchical billing system lets customers charge conferences to particular departments or work groups.

Program Management

Sprint has a variety of services designed to help customers get started conferencing. Those services include:

- Project Management - Sprint takes care of project management for the customer coordinating the shipping and installation of both network and equipment. Sprint is the single point of contact for the customer during service implementation.
- User Orientation - New users receive product specific training via video conference or through self-paced materials. Each customer also receives product specific reference guides and pricing information.

Public Rooms

Sprint has aligned with over 500 video conferencing facility owners all over the world to provide video conferencing services to organizations or individuals that do not own private facilities. Kinko's, Sprint's largest public room relationship, provides over 140 public room facilities in the U.S. Public room facilities resell video conferencing services provided by Sprint.

Currently, there are 45 dedicated executive style conference rooms and 275 international public rooms connected on Sprint's network. Reservations for Sprint public rooms (including Kinko's) are handled by Sprint's reservations center. Billing for non-Kinko's public rooms is handled by Sprint. Fees for Kinko's public room facilities are billed by Kinko's. Rooms can be reserved by calling 1-800-669-1235.

SPRINT VIDEO CONFERENCING PUBLIC ROOM PROGRAM
PRICING AND ROOM RENTAL INFORMATION

How do I rent a domestic or international public video conferencing room and how much does it cost?

To reserve a public room on Sprint's public room network, you will need to establish a Sprint account through Sprint's video conferencing reservations center. Sprint will bill you for room rental, transmission and value-added connectivity services. Room rental fees are determined by the agreement made between Sprint and the organization which owns the public room facilities. Room rental fees for domestic public rooms using Sprint network can range from $150 to $375 per hour. These fees do not include transmission or value-added connectivity services.

How do I rent a public room on the Kinko's network and how much does it cost?

If you are conferencing from a Kinko's location, Kinko's will bill you for the Kinko's portion of the conference upon completion of the meeting. Kinko's fees can range from $150 - $180 an hour per Kinko's location for point-to point conferences and $205 - $235 an hour per Kinko's location for multipoint conferences. These fees include room rental and transmission services.

To speak to a reservations agent on public room schedule, location or pricing information including Kinko's, please call the Sprint's Video Conferencing Reservations Center at 1-800-669-1235.
